

Featured Project: Parliament House, Edinburgh

Stone Type: Marble

As part of the ongoing refurbishment of the main Parliament House complex, this particular phase of the project included the provision of three new court rooms along with new public circulation areas in the Supreme Courts of Scotland.

Stirling Stone was appointed specialist subcontractor for the design, supply and installation of various marbles and travertine.

Marble wall cladding and flooring were used extensively throughout the main court rooms and circulation areas. One striking feature was the green marble entrance portico to each court room.

